

Master's Level Assistantship Opportunities in Environmental Education and Leadership at The University of Georgia

The Department of Agricultural Leadership, Education, and Communication at the University of Georgia is pleased to announce the availability of two Master's level assistantships beginning July, 2010. The successful candidates will...

- ✓ Work with faculty to develop and co-teach an undergraduate course, Communication and Leadership in Practice, designed to serve as an outdoor-based compliment to traditional classroom-based public speaking courses.
- ✓ Collaborate with other graduate students in the Department of Forest Resources and Environmental Conservation at Virginia Tech to develop communication and leadership skills in undergraduate students majoring in the natural resources.
- ✓ Teach urban high school students from Washington, DC and Atlanta, GA through outdoor field-based data collection experiences (travel provided).
- ✓ Assist in the preparation of a recruitment video showcasing natural resource and agricultural communication majors.

TO APPLY:

Please send a current resume, the contact information for 3 professional references, and a 2-page (double-spaced) personal statement describing your experience with (a) teaching, (b) working with high school youth, and (c) video technology to:

Dr. Nick Fuhrman
Assistant Professor
Dept. of Agricultural Leadership, Education, and Communication
University of Georgia
116 Four Towers Building
Athens, Georgia 30602

The selection process will begin March 1, 2010 and will continue until two successful candidates are selected. If you have any questions, please don't hesitate to contact Dr. Fuhrman at fuhrman@uga.edu or (706) 542-8828.